

Leading biodiesel company COO to present keynote at NY finance summit
Renewable Energy Group, Inc.'s Daniel Oh to present at opening session of the Biodiesel Finance and Investment Summit in New York City, NY

(Ames, IA Jan. 14, 2008) – On the heels of a newly inked Renewable Fuels Standard and record high biodiesel feedstock prices, an Iowa company's leadership is center stage at the Biodiesel Finance and Investment Summit in New York City.

Renewable Energy Group, Inc.'s Daniel Oh will present the keynote address, "What's Next for the Biodiesel Industry," during Tuesday's opening session.

Oh, Renewable Energy Group, Inc.'s chief operating officer, is expected to offer a snapshot of today's global and domestic biodiesel markets and outline the future of the industry as it relates to national infrastructure, legislation and alternative feedstocks use.

"It's been a transformative year in the biodiesel industry and while there are many challenges facing our growing industry, there are some exciting trends which we see continuing," said Oh of the presentation. "With new federal legislation calling for the use of one billion gallons of biodiesel by 2012, the 'What's Next' question is on everyone's minds.

Oh's presentation is also expected to outline the need for alternative feedstocks such as algae and camelina as well as offer a forecast for biodiesel infrastructure demands.

Oh has more than 20 years of experience in management and business; including retail operations, real estate investments and development, mergers and acquisitions. He served in the U.S. Army as an infantry officer for 11 years and held the rank of Major. Oh holds an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago with concentrations in finance, accounting and strategic management as well as a Bachelor of Science degree from the United States Military Academy with a concentration in economics.
